

Provenance

CAMPBELL LAW

is a director and a co-founder of Provenance.

He has 30 years of experience working in and is well versed with the world of offshore financial services and over 5 years' experience in the specific sphere of digital assets.

He is a Notary Public, has sat on and chaired several Government Boards, Law Review committees, as well as the Board of the Cayman Arts Trust, over the years, giving him a broader stroke on how the system and the country works.

Fun Fact:

Campbell has lived in Cayman since he was five and went to boarding school in Scotland. Campbell has been an avid sportsman in his youth representing both Scotland at the 18 age group rugby and the Cayman Islands at the Commonwealth Games in 1998 Rugby Sevens. His current favorite hobby is scuba diving which he has been doing since he was 14. Campbell describes his worst job as having to proof-read the local telephone directory.

"The creation of Provenance has provided an opportunity to have a company that will be a market leader and an entity that will be at the forefront of establishing rigorous yet practical solutions to the fintech world."

WORK HISTORY

Starting off with Coutts & Co before heading to help set up Ironshore Corporate Services for Ian Boxall & Co., Campbell's entrepreneurial spirit was then kindled by starting up a small consulting business that in turn led to an 11-year stint with Goldman Sachs. After Goldman, Campbell moved to manage a Company Management business for a local law firm, following which he founded and managed Silverside Management Ltd., a fully licensed Company Manager which was successfully sold in August of this year.

Campbell is now focusing his energies and experience on directorship roles within the governance side of Cayman's fast growing fintech business, in both the traditional and digital asset space. His new consulting business focuses on corporate governance, AML and regulatory risk management, along with local business set up, management and licensing. The local regulations and governance around digital asset management and a digital corporate governance are very different from those of traditional asset business and require both a deep understanding of corporate board governance and the specialized knowledge of the crypto space.
